AF Gives Promotion Present To 831 Maj.

The Air Force, beating a Christmas goal, announced on 22 December selection of 831 majors for temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel.

This includes 788 line officers (Names begin Page 27) and 43 branch officers (Names on Back Page).

As The Journal went to press, the Army was getting set to announce 1118 promotions to temporary lieutenant colonel. Cut-off date of rank was 30 Nov. 1955. Names will be announced in Circular 624-31.

First promotions were made on 22 and

Our Top FEAF Airman Reports on Red Force

An on-the-spot report on the expansion of Communist airpower in the Far East and the readiness of our forces to meet this growing peril will be a feature of next week's issue of THE JOURNAL.

General Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, Commander, Far East Air Forces, has written a special article for THE JOURNAL analyzing, at year's end, the airpower picture in the Far East.

One of the Air Force's most noted authors—his book "Airman At Yalta" has won wide acclaim—General Kuter gives latest intelligence information on the steps which have been taken by the Communist bloc to augment their air strength. He tells how FEAF must "achieve a persuasive, qualitative superiority in spite of our sharp quantitative inferiority."

Service Polio Care Marked By Confusion; Navy Declines Families; Army, AF Differ

THE JOURNAL has uncovered widely-divergent rules for the care and treatment of members of military families afflicted with poliomyelitis. Unless corrected, the problem promises to create apprehension and misunderstanding throughout the Armed Forces.

Reports that some polio-stricken children of Servicemen are being turned away from military hospitals led THE JOURNAL to inquire into military policy for the treatment of such cases.

A Defense Department spokesman in the office of the Assistant Defense Secretary (Health and Medical) conceded that there is no such overall policy. He said each of the Services makes its own rules.

This statement was confirmed by Army, Navy and Air Force sources. They revealed that no two policies are alike in the three Services as far as poliomyelitis is concerned.

The Navy said, "We don't take care of dependents."

The Army reported that its hospitals "take patients in the acute phases," but

Defense Order Calls Halt To "Exploitation" Of Service Personnel By Insurance Firms

New rules to protect Service personnel from the "exploitation" of commercial life insurance companies and their agents were issued this week by the Defense Department.

The action followed recommendations made by the House Armed Services Special Investigations Subcommittee which, earlier this year, conducted an extensive probe into the sale of commercial life insurance to Servicemen.

Representative F. Edward Hébert (D-La.), the Subcommittee Chairman, said he is "well satisfied" with the new directive and thinks "it goes directly to the source of the troubles."

The Pentagon order provides that:

• No company will be permitted to sell insurance on a military reservation under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government within the continental U.S. or the Territories unless that began with appointment to the U.S. Military Academy in 1913.

Barring a last-minute change in plans, calculated for later public announcement, President Eisenhower will announce General Johnson's appointment to the high NATO office. It is seen likely that the Chief Executive at the same time will name General Johnson, who has been head of the Continental Air Command, for a fourth star.

General Johnson's new assignment will

Air Staff Seeks Cuts In Personnel Shifts

The Air Force has reported approval of six recommendations made to the Air Staff for reducing personnel transfers and achieving economies in shipment of household goods.

Out of a total of 24 proposals, the Air Staff has endorsed the following six actions, which have been put into effect: (1) The Air Staff should take action to insure that carriers pay their just share of claims due to damage of household goods.

MOOSE HORN CHIEF—Maj. Gen. James F. Collins, USA, commanding general, 71st Infantry Division, will be in command of exercise "Moose Horn" in Alaska during January and February. The exercise will provide intensive training in tactical operations and cross-country movement, conducted through terrain that is representative of undeveloped areas in the Territory. Comparative merits of two methods of resupply; airdrop and giant tractor-trains with sleds, will be tested through resupplying one team by aerial delivery and another by surface transportation. Each bulldozer tractor will pull four ten-ton sleds loaded with ammunition, rations and fuel. The maneuver will be staged in the Fort Greely area, 400 miles north of Ft. Richardson. Temperatures are expected to reach more than 50 degrees below zero.

both the company and its agents are properly licensed by any one of the States, the Territories or the District of Columbia. Where the State has retained exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction over any part of the installation, the company and its agents must qualify under the laws of that particular state to be eligible to solicit on the installations.

• Agents will not be privileged to solicit insurance on military installations outside the U. S. unless the company they represent has been accredited by the Department of Defense and the agent's name appears on an authorized list of agents submitted to the Pentagon by the company accredited.

• Effective 1 July 1956, the Pentagon will compile a list of accredited companies authorized to solicit on military installations overseas. Applications for accreditation will be received only during the period 1 May to 30 June of each year and accreditation will be valid for one year only unless sooner withdrawn.

• At least seven days must elapse between the date an insurance application is signed and certification of an allotment for the payment of premium is made.

The directive orders each of the military departments to issue regulations which will prohibit "such unauthorized practices as solicitation of recruits or trainees and personnel at ports of embarkation departing overseas, solicitation of 'mass' or 'captive' audiences and sharp practices involving rebates or elimination of full competition."

Military personnel on active duty are expressly prohibited from representing any insurance company.

Installation commanders are authorized to ban insurance agents from soliciting for "serious or repeated infractions" of the new regulations. For serious or repeated violations a commander may suspend a company, and companies may be permanently prohibited from soliciting on military installations by action of the Defense Department.

The Hébert Subcommittee found during its investigation that many Servicemen in Europe were paying for commercial life insurance for only three to five months and then dropping the policy because they did not understand what they had bought or else they felt that they should not have bought the insurance in the first place.

The only beneficiaries in such cases "were the agent and the company," the Subcommittee reported. Those who dropped the policy premium payments before the third year's premiums had been paid received no extended insurance protection, no cash surrender value and no cash loan value.

The new directive makes all commanders responsible for the counseling of personnel under their command concerning the purchase of life insurance.

The regulation states: "It should be thoroughly explained that such a transaction is intended to continue over a period of years. Further, that, if the insurance policy is allowed to lapse, the individual may not recover more than a nominal amount of the premiums paid. Commanders should insure that such transactions are entered into in good faith and only after a full understanding of the agreement by the military member."

To prevent mass solicitations, the order directs that they will be on an individual basis, preferably by appointment, and in a specific location at specified times.

The Department of Defense Instruction, 1344.1, dated 15 December 1955, also provides other safeguards including a list of minimum requirements for companies and agents, rules governing use of the allotment system, and directs that bi-monthly reports will be made of violations.

Representative Hébert said he believes "when this directive is fully implemented there will be no more complaints on this subject." The "real beneficiaries" of the regulation, he said, are the "Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen of our Armed Forces."

Military Buying Faces Shake-Up, Return To Large-Scale Competitive Advertising

Defense Department procurement policies appear to be headed for a major face-lifting which could mark the virtual abandonment of negotiated contracts.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee disclosed this week that he will urge the second session of the 84th Congress "to do some first-class overhauling" as a means of putting Defense purchasing back in a competitive market.

He made the statement following release of a report by his Special Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Representative F. Edward Hébert (D-La.), which, Mr. Vinson said, painted a "shocking" picture of Pentagon procurement practices.

The report revealed that almost 95 per cent of the contracts let by the Defense Department during the 30-month period from 1 Jan. 1953 to 30 June 1955 were negotiated. Mr. Vinson said "it is going to be mighty hard to explain" why only 5.8 per cent of the contracts were made through advertised competitive bids.

The Armed Services Committee Chairman added that Congress did not intend for negotiated contracts to be used "to supplant the traditional system of advertised competition in bidding." He said such contracts were to be the exception, "But the exceptions have become the rule, as the figures show."

In a memorandum to the Chairman, the Special Investigations Subcommittee Counsel, Mr. John J. Courtney, indicated that the Air Force is the greatest user of negotiated contracts. In that Service "negotiation has practically taken over the procurement system," he said. One table in the report shows that 99.56 per cent of the $18.8 billion paid out by the AF in the 2½-year period was for negotiated items.

Separate statistics were provided in the report for the Army's Corps of Engineers and the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, both of which were given a clean bill of health by the Subcommittee.

All other bureaus in the Navy handed out 45,000 contracts totalling more than $9.9 billion during the period under study. Of this amount, only 5.83 per cent went to advertised competitive bids.

The Army's Chemical, Medical, Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal and Transportation Corps made 1.5 million contracts totalling more than $7.5 billion, with 19.18 per cent of the total dollar value going to advertised competitive bids.

The USAF Air Materiel Command spent $18.8 billion on approximately 31,000 contracts, and less than one per cent of the money went to advertised competitive bids.

"The conclusion seems inescapable," the Subcommittee reported, "that the Departments have by a consistent, progressive increase in the use of an exception in the Armed Services Procurement Act practically scrapped the traditional system of free advertised competitive bidding."

Fate Of New Career Laws, Military Budget Lies In Hands Of 77 Members Of Congress

When the second session of the 84th Congress convenes next month, military men and women and their families will give special attention to the activities and statements of 77 of the 511 members of the two Houses.

These 77 Senators and Representatives—members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees and Appropriations Committees—will be the top Congressional spokesmen on matters relating to the military forces.

The fate of the proposed $35.5 billion Defense budget will rest largely in the hands of the Appropriations Committees of the two Houses. Chairman of the Senate Committee is Senator Carl Hayden (D-Ariz.), and the Military Subcommittee is headed by Senator Dennis Chavez (D-NM). The House Committee is headed by Representative Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.); the three Defense Subcommittees by Representatives Robert L. F. Sikes (D-Fla.), Harry R. Sheppard (D-Calif.), and George H. Mahon (D-Tex.).

New career incentive legislation covering family medical care, housing, readjustment pay, retirement rank, credit for Academy service and numerous other aspects of military life, and expected to cost one and one half billion dollars (THE JOURNAL, 17 Dec.), falls into the province of the Armed Services Committees, headed by Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) and Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.).

In addition, a fifth committee will consider the $590 million Survivor Benefits bill. This group is the Senate Finance Committee headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.).

Here is a complete run-down of the Congressional members who will have the most to say about military legislation in 1956:

Service Polio Care Marked By Confusion

continued treatment in the recuperative stages is up to individual hospital COs.

The Air Force said, "We try to do the best we can for all of our military personnel and their families. We take care of them for whatever length of time is necessary to get them well enough so they can go home and treatment can be continued on an out-patient basis."

The Washington, D. C., chapter of the National Polio Foundation said it assists in the care of many Service children, and that during the current year the Foundation has "rendered full assistance to military personnel in numerous ranks."

In at least one instance, the Washington Chapter reported, a member of the Air Force asked for help in getting his child transferred from the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center. The hospital authorities had asked him, he said, to have the child moved "as soon as possible."

The National headquarters in New York told THE JOURNAL that figures have not yet been compiled for 1955, but Foundation files show 800 Servicemen or members of Service families were assisted by the Foundation in 1954. A spokesman for the organization said the figure was not further broken down but it could be assumed the total figure was made up largely of wives and children.

In further explanation of the Navy's policy, a spokesman for that Service said "The Navy has no authority to provide such care for military dependents."

He added that patients are taken in at Navy hospitals for diagnosis but when the diagnosis is polio they are immediately "put in outside hospitals." For example, he said, children from the Marine Corps Base at Quantico, Va., would be sent to Children's Hospital in Washington.

Although all major Naval hospitals have iron lungs and those which do not can borrow such equipment, he said dependent care would not be provided unless there was "absolutely no other hospital facilities available; like on an island some place, where I guess we would take care of them."

The Army spokesman said no member of an Army man's family who was in the acute phase of polio would be turned away from an Army hospital. "They would be admitted immediately," he said.

After the acute phase had been bridged, the Army allows the patient who needs prolonged physical therapy or other specialized treatment to make a written request for such treatment. If it is not available in the facility where the patient was initially hospitalized, the request goes to the nearest Army hospital where such treatment is provided. The final decision for treatment of this type is up to the individual hospital, the Army spokesman said, and hinges on a number of factors including the patient load, the number of therapists on duty at the hospital, the availability of necessary equipment, and so forth.

Most Army hospitals, he said, also are able to provide out-patient care for those who require such treatment. Special rehabilitation is best provided, he added, at Army hospitals which can give special attention and emphasis to this phase of the disease.

The Air Force policy, as outlined by one of its spokesmen, appears to be the most comprehensive program in the three services. "In all circumstances where we can take care of them [members of an Air Force family] in our own local hospitals, that's what we do," he said.

Although the Air Force does not have a polio center, as such, the spokesman noted that it does have "a special polio service at the Sheppard AFB hospital in Texas, and, when time and distance factors make it possible, we send polio patients there."

The Air Force takes care of AF families through all stages of the illness at AF hospitals until they are well enough to make the trip from their homes to the hospital for continued out-patient treatment.

Only a small percentage of polio patients require hospitalization over a long period of time, the Air Force said, and these are provided for in AF hospitals wherever possible.

AF SHOOT FOR 75,000 HOUSING UNITS

The Air Force, with present plans for 51,000 new housing units, now says the total may go as high as 75,000 when major command surveys, now underway, are completed. Current studies include the needs of lower grade airmen with families.

The housing would be constructed under Public Law 345, which provides for use of FHA mortgage insurance for civilian builders who construct units to be owned and managed by the Air Force. Mortgage payments would be met by use of quarters allowances.

The new plan follows Presidential approval of legislation in August. The Air Force will launch the program with construction of about 1,000 units at Abilene AFB, Tex.

Air General Will Get NATO Billet

give added emphasis to the representation of airpower spokesmen at the highest echelons of military planning. Air Force leaders, who long have maintained that air generals should be given wider recognition in joint Service and international agency commands, will be gratified at the choice of General Johnson to replace the Army's famed General Collins.

The Air Force will count this action as a step forward to their ultimate hope of being given the top NATO command job, that of Supreme Allied Commander Europe (SACEUR), now held by General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA.

The Military Committee is the principal military body of NATO and is responsible directly to the Committee of Defense Ministers. It is composed of one military representative, usually at the Chief of Staff level, from each Nation, except Iceland which is represented by a civilian.

The Standing Group serves as the executive or steering agent of the NATO Military Committee and is made up of one military representative from the United States, United Kingdom and France. Its job includes responsibility to provide guidance to regional planning groups, it also coordinates and integrates strategic and logistic planning for NATO commands.

The Air Force announced last week that Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, USAF, who has been Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller, would succeed General Johnson as head of ConAC "immediately."

An official Pentagon statement, issued on 15 Dec., said only that General Johnson "is being nominated for a highly important assignment to be announced at a later date." This unusual wording stirred special interest in General Johnson's new duty.

That "highly important assignment" is to succeed General Collins.

In the interim, General Johnson will continue a collateral duty as senior Air Force representative to the United Nations, an assignment which obviously has helped prepare him to move into the NATO post.

General Collins will be 60 on 1 May. That is the normal age for retirement, although there is authority for his being continued on active duty. In view of the fact that General Collins agreed to remain on active duty at the President's request after a four-year tour as Army Chief of Staff ended in 1953, it is seen certain that he will now be permitted a belated retirement.

Many general officers of the Army and Air Force retire a month or two before reaching the age of 60, in order to safeguard certain benefits for survivors.

General Johnson, 51, was graduated from West Point in 1926. He won the Medal of Honor as a bomber commander in Europe during WWII. His postwar assignments include service as commander of the Third Air Division (later the Third Air Force) in England, with additional duty as Chief of the MAAG for the United Kingdom.

Upon return from duty in Europe, General Johnson on 30 Jan. 1952 took charge of the Continental Air Command at Mitchel AFB, N. Y.

Since 1 July 1953 he has served as Senior Air Force member of the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations.

General Collins served as Army Chief of Staff from August 1949 until August 1953, when he was appointed by President Eisenhower as U. S. Representative to the Military Committee and Standing Group of NATO.

The Chief Executive called upon General Collins for another critical assignment in November 1954 as Special Representative of the United States in Vietnam with the personal rank of Ambassador. He remained in Vietnam until May 1955 when he resumed his permanent assignment with NATO.

Too Many Cooks Spoil The Army Pot; Thousands Will Get Combat Billets

The Army, heavy with cooks, bakers and military policemen, but light on soldier leaders for the combat arms, has launched a program to reclassify thousands of top three graders.

Soldiers whose MOS's are surplus to current requirements will be reclassified by administrative action or retraining.

The Army said NCO's and specialists have had previous training and experience qualifying them to fill vacancies. For them only an administrative reclassification will be necessary.

In other instances, NCO's and specialists will be required to attend retraining courses to supplement their present knowledge to fill the jobs in the combat arms.

The Army has exempted from the reclassification program men who are over 41 years of age; specialists who do not volunteer; men who are physically unqualified, and individuals who have been selected to attend a service school and are awaiting movement instructions.

Specialists who volunteer for retraining or who are voluntarily reclassified by virtue of past training and experience and who are assigned to noncommissioned officer duties, may be appointed noncommissioned officers. Army Regulations 624-200 which require quotas for lateral appointments within the same pay grade are waived for this category of personnel until 1 April, 1956.

Reclassification or mandatory retraining has been directed for surplus personnel in the upper three grades who hold a primary military occupational specialty in the fields listed below:

The major problem in parachuting emergency supplies has been the unavoidably wide dispersal of small, individually-parachuted cargo units.

Tactical Air Command will lick this problem handily with the new Hercules C-130 transport built by Lockheed. This combat cargo carrier has the capacity to haul up to 25,000 pounds and paradrop it in a matter of seconds. Using the newest-developed aerial delivery techniques, this huge cargo load can be precision-dropped onto virtually any small space.

Powered by four Allison T36 turbo-prop engines, the Hercules is more than 19 times as productive as World War II twin-engine transports... and capable of flying cargo and men farther, faster and at lower cost than any other present-day combat transport. ### USN Picks 1,752 MC & DC Lts. (jg) For Promotion

Navy selection boards have chosen 1,752 Regular and active duty Reserve Medical and Dental Corps lieutenants (jg) for increased rank.

The selections were made under the provisions of the Temporary Promotion Act of 1941.

Additional Medical and Dental Corps boards are in session to select physicians and dentists in the rank of lieutenant (jg) for advancement. Those picked under the terms of the '47 Law (OPA) will make their permanent number as vacancies occur. Those picked by the PL-188 board, however, are not eligible for permanent advancement.

It is the Navy's hope that Congress will enact proposed legislation permitting officers chosen by Temporary Act boards to be blanketed in under the Officer Personnel Act.

Of the 1,752 named for promotion by the Temporary boards, which met on 29 Nov., 1,005 are physicians and 747 are dentists.

Last year, the Navy named 524 doctors and 315 dentists under terms of the OPA.

Marine Corps Selection Board Names 645 For Permanent Warrant Grades

The Marine Corps selection board which met on 26 Oct. has chosen 645 for permanent appointments.

Headquarters states that competition for the warrant billets was exceedingly keen since this was the first permanent warrant board to be convened since 1949. More than 10,000 applications were submitted for the board's consideration.

Of the total number picked, 174 were selected in non-technical fields and will be officially designated as Marine Gunners and wear the new "bursting spherical shell" insignia. A description of the new collar device appeared in THE JOURNAL, 10 Dec., Page 6.

Of the 4,466 applicants in non-technical fields, 24 enlisted men, 24 temporary warrant officers and 126 temporary officers were named. In the technical fields, 75 enlisted men, 75 temporary warrant officers and 321 temporary officers were chosen from among 5,549 applicants.

In addition, two Woman Marine temporary warrant officers and one enlisted woman were named for permanent appointments. Women Marines were considered in a separate category and did not compete for billets with male Marines.

The board gave consideration to Regular and Reserve temporary commissioned officers and temporary warrants; permanent Reserve officers on active duty on 1 July 55, who were former Regular enlisted men; permanent Reserve officers on inactive duty who were former Regular enlisted men who were commissioned on or after 1 July 50; Reserve warrants, either on active or inactive duty; and Regular master sergeants and technical sergeants.

Temporary commissioned officers and temporary warrant officers who receive the permanent appointments will remain in their higher temporary rank until such time as future conditions may require their reversion to permanent grade.

Reserves named for permanent warrants who are serving in a higher grade will be reverted to their permanent rank upon acceptance of the appointment.

The names of the Women Marines, picked for permanent appointments are Ruth L. Wood, Lillian M. Hartley and Lotus T. Mort.

Here are lists of those selected for permanent warrant rank:

Marine Corps Picks 32 EM For Officer Rank

A Marine board has named 32 enlisted men for permanent unrestricted commissions as 2d lieutenants in the Regular Corps.

This is the first time since WWII that such selections have been made. The practice of choosing outstanding EM for permanent commissions began in 1889, but was discontinued during WWII when only temporary and Reserve commissions were given to career enlisted men.

The readoption of the policy is part of the Corps' overall career incentive program which includes the advancement of EM to LDO and WO status.

The board, which met on 15 Nov., considered 300 nominees who were recommended for officer rank by their commanding officers. To be eligible for consideration, the men had to have more than three and less than 29 years of service with the rank of sergeant and above.

The selected EM will be commissioned after completion of a screening course at the Basic School, Quantico, Va. They will enter the Officer Candidate Course on 9 Jan., and upon completion of the course of instruction, will be given dates of rank as officers from 26 March 56.

Here are the names of the selectees:
Blair, S/Sgt Lynde    Cody, S/Sgt J F, Jr
Clark, M/Sgt G (n)    Crudup, Sgt D B

SHIPS OF THE FLEET

USS Skate and USS Swordfish

Have been officially adopted as the names of the third and fourth nuclear powered submarines. The Skate is being built by the General Dynamics Corp., Electric Boat Co. Division, Groton, Conn., and the Swordfish is under construction at the U.S. Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, N. H. Both contracts were announced on 29 July 54, and are part of the Navy's FY '55 shipbuilding program. Both names have been used previously. The first Skate was launched in April 1943. After making several successful war patrols, she took part in the Bikini A-bomb tests, and was one of eight subs to survive two explosions of the atomic bomb. The first Swordfish, launched in April 1939, made 12 war patrols but was lost on her 13th in Jan. 1945.

USS Tulare

The largest and most modern attack cargo ship in the world has completed her builder's trials and is slated to be commissioned in mid-January. Named after a California county, she is a prototype vessel equipped with many new features. In addition to the most modern electronic and radar devices, she has a helicopter landing platform on her stern and two four-legged mast supporting booms capable of lifting 60-ton landing craft to and from the sea. Her armament is the most powerful of any attack cargo ship in the fleet. She is 563-feet long and has a speed in excess of 22 knots. Combat-loaded, she is rated at 18,000 tons. Commissioning ceremonies will be held aboard the ship and at docks in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's San Francisco, Calif. Shipyard, according to Capt. Donald T. Wood, USN, prospective commanding officer of the giant cargo ship. The Tulare is equipped with 27 landing craft, nine of which are the largest amphibious craft carried aboard ship.

WOMEN SET RECORD

The Women Marine Administrative Platoon of the 2d 155M Gun Battalion, USMCR, Miami, Fla., is reported to have set a new record when it attained its authorized strength on 15 Dec. Activated on 31 July, the Platoon, under 1st Lt. Mabel A. Pauley, USMCR, is stated to be the first unit in the Marine Corps Reserve to reach T/O within one year after being formed.

No other Woman Marine platoon has reached T/O in less than 14 months.

With MATS, his supply line can never be more than hours long

No matter where our men may be, Military Air Transport—MATS—insures that supplies can reach them within hours . . . practically anywhere.

Essential here is the Douglas C-124, largest operational cargo transport. Able to fly 2000 miles non-stop with a 25-ton payload, the C-124 can handle 96% of all military equipment without disassembly. During Korea it not only flew high-priority cargo, but worked as a hospital plane evacuating the wounded.

Looking to tomorrow, Douglas will have even larger and faster cargo transports.

BASIC TO MATS OPERATIONS—THE DOUGLAS C-124

Defense is everybody's business. Development of the C-124 shows how Douglas works with military planners to have aircraft ready when needed. But human skills are also needed to fly and service these planes. If you want a career, the Air Force offers opportunity.

AvMed School Graduates

110—Three Will Remain

A class of 110 medical officers were graduated 15 Dec. at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex.; three will be retained on the faculty of the school.

Lt. George K. Nitz, jr., 26, who received his medical degree a year ago from the University of Wisconsin, is assigned to the Department of Ophthalmology.

Capt. Clyde H. Kratochvil, 32, who received his M.D. from the same University in 1952, later completing post-graduate work for a Ph.D. in physiology, will join the Department of Physiology and Biophysics.

Lt. Clyde M. Williams, 27, was graduated from Baylor University College of Medicine three years ago. Dr. Williams went to Oxford University, England, where he took a D. Phil. (Ph.D.) in physiology while he taught in the Department of Human Anatomy. He will enter the Department of Radiobiology at the Air Force School.

Col. John R. McGraw, Deputy Commandant of the Randolph Field institution, presided at the graduate ceremony, where Col. Aubrey L. Jennings, Surgeon of the Air Force Headquarters Command in Washington, D. C., spoke.

Five surgeons from the air forces of other nations received diplomas. Capt. Francisco de Assis Freitas and Marco Antonio Gomez Perrone came from Brazil, which sent the aeromedical school its first foreign student, the late Navy Lt. Mario de Miranda Pontes, back in 1923.

Capt. K. K. Majumder is the first graduate from India. With Lt. Col. Ahmed Salah Youssef of Egypt and Maj. Jorge A. Contreras of Colombia, they bring the school's foreign alumni to 193, from 41 countries outside the Iron Curtain.

Of the U. S. medical officers, 14 have been selected for assignments overseas.

Air Force Has Non-Rated Three-Star As Gen. Asensio Moves To Pentagon

Lt. Gen. Manuel J. Asensio, USAF, the Air Force's first non-rated three star officer, has taken over his new post as Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller, at the Pentagon.

Lt. Gen. Asensio

Formerly Vice Commander of the Continental Air Command where he served at Mitchel AFB, N. Y. in two-star rank, General Asensio has succeeded Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, USAF, who replaces Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, USAF, as ConAC chief. General Stone had been Comtroller since 28 July 1951.

Maj. Gen. Morris R. Nelson, USAF, who has been Commander of the Eastern Air Defense Force at Stewart AFB, N. Y., moves up to succeed General Asensio in the No. 2 ConAC billet.

To replace General Nelson, the Air Force has named Maj. Gen. Norris B. Harbold, USAF.

GENERAL ASENSIO, 49, was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1927, serving first in the Cavalry and transferring to the Corps of Engineers in 1930, winning a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the University of California a year later.

He served in air engineer assignments during WWII, later joining the Policy Group of the War Department General Staff in Washington. He transferred to the Air Force in 1947.

He was graduated from the National War College in 1949 and then was given duty with the Office of the Air Force Comptroller, first as Chief of the Facilities Division, then later as Director of the Budget. He was assigned to ConAC in July 1954.

GENERAL STONE

51, the son of Col. Charles B.

Lt. Gen. Stone

Stone, Jr., is a 1927 USMA classmate of General Asensio. He was first commissioned in the Infantry, but was assigned to flying school in 1929.

In April 1940 General Stone was detailed as a student at the Air Corps Tactical School, Maxwell Field, Ala., from which he graduated the following June. He then returned to Wright Field as chief of the Supply Branch of the Air Service Command. In February 1943 he was assigned with the office of the Assistant Chief of Air Staff at Headquarters Army Air Forces and served there until August 1943, when he was assigned with the United States Army Forces in the China-Burma-India theater.

AF Cambridge Group Begins New Project

A joint U.S.-Canadian research project has been started at Hopedale, Labrador, to determine the safety and suitability of snow and ice as landing fields for modern aircraft.

The project, conducted by the USAF Cambridge Research Center of the Air Research and Development Command, and supported by other U.S. agencies and the Canadian Defense Research Board, got underway early this month and is expected to be completed by next Spring.

Experiments are being conducted by the AFCRC experts along with scientists from the Army Corps of Engineers' SIPRE (Snow, Ice, Permafrost Research Establishment), the University of Michigan, and the U.S. Navy Hydrographic Office, actively supported by the Canadian DRB.

First members of the research team to arrive at Hopedale were 1st Lt. Paul W. Pomeroy and 2d Lt. Wilford F. Weeks, of the AFCRC, and Mr. Owen S. Lee of the Navy's Hydrographic Office. They will be joined by others this month.

The AF Cambridge Research Center said the problem of safe landings and takeoffs by heavily loaded aircraft in the snowy wastes of the Arctic "has reached major proportions" and the main purpose of the new project will be to solve this problem.

MATS' Sq. Beats Time On Convair YC-131C Test

Operational tests of the first twin-engine turbo prop aircraft assigned to the Air Force have been completed ahead of schedule by a unit of the Military Air Transport Service.

Considered a major event in air transport, the flight tests just ended involved two Convair YC-131C turbo prop aircraft that were delivered in January to the 1700th Test Squadron (Turbo Prop), Kelly AFB, Tex., a unit of Continental Division, MATS. The aircraft are powered by Allison YT-56 engines with Aeroproducts propellers.

Following the conclusion of their operational testing program on 15 Dec. they were described as forerunners of the future "work horses" in the Air Force transport mission.

Said Lt. Col. Samuel C. Burgess, test squadron commander: "The test program has shown conclusively that turbine-propeller powered aircraft have a most promising future as logistic carriers in the modernization of the military air transport fleet."

Primary mission of the test program was to accumulate maximum flying time on the turbo prop aircraft in the minimum elapsed time to obtain technical and other data pertaining to the turbine engines and the special propellers designed for their use.

In an accelerated flying program, the two YC-131C aircraft were flown for a combined total of 3,000 hours in less than eight months. Both scheduled and non-scheduled transport routes were flown during the period beginning 1 May 1955 from Kelly AFB to points scattered over the nation.

Similar operational tests were begun by the squadron in September for two Boeing YC-97J four-engine turbo prop aircraft powered by Pratt and Whitney T-34 turbines rated at 6,000 horsepower and driving Curtiss-Wright propellers. Later, tests will begin on the Lockheed YC-121F turbo prop aircraft using four T-34 engines and Hamilton Standard propellers.

Colonel Burgess praised the personnel of the squadron for bringing the test program on the YC-131C aircraft to a successful end more than six weeks ahead of schedule.

MATS Beats Flight Program Schedule with Allison Turbo-Prop Engines and Aero products Propellers

To MATS' 1700th Test Squadron — Congratulations for a good job well done.

This month, the final hour will be flown on a program which has as its target 3000 flight hours by January 30, 1956 on two Convair YC-131C aircraft powered with Allison Turbo-Prop engines and Aero products Propellers. The program will be completed more than 30 days ahead of schedule — thanks to the skill and enthusiasm of the pilots and crews who were given the job to do.

The aircraft were delivered to MATS at Kelly AFB, San Antonio, Texas, in January, 1955. The 1700th Test Squadron had just been activated and was composed of men who not only were outstanding in their abilities but who demonstrated a genuine enthusiasm for Turbo-Prop transports in military aviation.

Colonel Claude Smith, Commander 1700th Air Transport Group, and his staff immediately initiated a familiarization program for all personnel and the entire squadron set out to obtain maximum time on the two aircraft. The object was to prove the place of turbo-prop-powered transport in military aviation.

Hours on the aircraft mounted rapidly. Sometimes the planes shuttled between Kelly AFB and Travis AFB, or to Andrews, or to the Allison plants in Indianapolis. And many days went by with pilots making operational flights over Texas. Three and four flights a day with five hours per flight became routine. And in one 24-hour period, each aircraft was kept in the air for 23 hours and 10 minutes.

It was long, hard work for pilots in the air and crews on the ground. But they kept at it — determined not only to beat their schedule but to demonstrate convincingly to others the firm, determined faith they have in the future of turbo-prop power.

Under Lt. Col. Samuel C. Burgess, Commander, the work of the 1700th Test

Squadron will continue with other aircraft powered with turbo-prop engines. But the pioneering phase of the program is concluding. The rest of the program has been aided immeasurably by the experience gained with the first aircraft assigned to the project.

We at Allison salute the good work of the men of the 1700th Test Squadron. We are proud to have been part of the project. You have proved that turbo-prop engines and propellers are "ready to go" and we are gratified that the convincing demonstration was made with Allison Turbo-Prop engines and Aero products Propellers.

The Polio Peril. In spite of the fact that all of the Armed Services have been in the forefront when it comes to offering the Salk Vaccine for the prevention of polio among children, there is an unfortunate and ominous lack of policy as to the treatment of members of Service families who may contract the dreaded malady.

In response to a first hand report which came to THE JOURNAL of a Navy family's child who was refused treatment at Bethesda Naval Center, we have learned (story on page one of this issue) that there is a deplorable lack of uniform policy in the Services as to the treatment of children who are stricken with polio. Members of any of the Services, of course, who come down with the disease, are given every possible treatment, but the same is not true of their children.

THE JOURNAL'S survey shows that the Navy has interpreted its laws and directives to mean that it can not treat such cases. In fact, this condition of affairs is so crystallized that many high ranking Navy officials, including some in the Medical Corps, have taken out special polio insurance for members of their families.

The Army is more liberal, and the Air Force, it seems, has the broadest policy in taking care of polio cases among its families. The National Polio Foundation, on the other hand, will give recuperative care to the children of any Service personnel who have passed the acute stage.

This is a dangerous situation for Service families. Under present confused policies, they can never be certain as to what treatment their children will get if polio should come. Should they buy polio insurance? Should they build up a special fund against the plague? These are questions Service families should not be called upon to answer. The answer should be given in a firm assurance from the Department of Defense that their wives and children will be given full and proper care for any illness that may strike.

Soldier-Statesman. The news that General J. Lawton Collins, USA, will retire early next year comes as somewhat of a shock to those who have known him over the years; it is hard for these people to imagine the Army without him.

But the transition has been eased by the fact that after his tour as Chief of Staff, where he was top Army man for four years, he was continued in active Service at the President's request as the U. S. Representative to the Military Committee and Standing Group of NATO. There, in a quiet and unobtrusive post he has contributed immeasurably to the security of the United States. In fact, his knowledge of world-wide affairs, his devotion to his country, and his wonderful ability to understand and get along with people of other nations have contributed more to our position in world affairs than ever can be told.

Young as he is, General Collins is an old timer in the military service. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1917, after having first been a student at Louisiana State University, ten years after his distinguished brother, Maj. Gen. James Lawton Collins, USMA '07. His service embraced two World Wars and brought him to the number one Army position at a time when his fine characteristics of understanding and forbearance stood the Army in good stead. The British, the French, the Russians, and the Belgians are among the nations who have added their decorations to the ones his grateful government has given to him.

That his successor in the NATO post will be Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, USAF, will be a source of special gratification to the Air Force. This is natural and to be expected. THE JOURNAL feels certain that the over-all interests of the United States were well represented by General Collins and that they will continue to be well represented by General Johnson whose previous duty as head of the Continental Air Command gave him a most comprehensive picture of the needs of our Nation.

THE JOURNAL salutes General Collins on his many years of contribution to the defense of the Nation and welcomes General Johnson to his most important military-diplomatic post.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—On or about the first of January the U. S. Coast Guard will again be under the jurisdiction of the United States Treasury. The Service, which has been under the direction of the Navy Department during the war, has achieved an outstanding record and has added new chapters to its already brilliant history. Since 1 Nov. 1941, the Service has participated in every major amphibious operation, supplied invasion troops, directed air-sea rescue operations, guarded ports and supervised loading of munitions.

50 Years Ago—We have before alluded to the public agitation against the low drinking resorts near Ft. Sheridan, Ill., by residents of neighboring villages, whose sons have been led into habits of intemperance by the keepers of the saloons, but the movement has taken a new turn which deserves further notice. The saloons, it may be re-stated, sprang up when the abolition of the sale of beer and light wines at Army post exchanges made it impossible for soldiers at Ft. Sheridan to obtain such beverages on the military reservation.

90 Years Ago—As another step in the incessant progression in fire-arm improvements, we note that a Captain Hagstrom, a Swede, has invented a new sort of needle-gun, which is to cut out the Prussian needle altogether. It fires ten shots a minute, and does not get foul after a hundred shots. It has been accepted by the Swedish Government, and is to be introduced into the Army.

EDITOR, THE JOURNAL:

Pop Swartwood says: To all of my boys out in the service from the old cadet days in West Point. I am sorry I cannot answer your wonderful Christmas cards and greetings. The reason is I can not see nor hold a pen to write. I'm confined to bed here in the U. S. Soldiers' Home Hospital. Kindest Greetings and fondest remembrances.

"Professional Pay"

EDITOR, THE JOURNAL:

The principle of incentive pay is well established in civilian society. There are numerous examples, such as: yearly bonuses, stock purchase plans for executives, etc. Congress has recognized the principle of incentive pay in the Armed Forces. For example: extra pay for rifle marksmanship, which provided an incentive to develop one's maximum capacity.

In recent years, the principle of "incentive pay" (distinct from hazardous duty pay) has been extended in the Armed Services. I refer to medical officers, whose professional skills are in short supply, particularly in the Armed Services. In this case, the "incentive pay" is to encourage the individual to simply continue practicing his skills in the same organization.

This "incentive pay," plus promotional benefits, has apparently not been sufficient. A Bill is now proposed (JOURNAL, 3 Dec. '55) to increase the "incentive" by the addition of a bonus plan and speedier promotions. There is good reason for this action, and the principle of extra reward for the highly skilled is well established in our society.

I suggest two items for consideration: (1) Is "incentive pay" the proper title for the case pertaining today to medical officers? Since this general situation occurs in all those cases or profession recognized and demanded by the civilian society, I suggest another title, such as, "professional pay" and "professional promotion credit." (2) The above suggested titles will clearly distinguish the purpose of these additional rewards. Personnel classification tables can then specifically indicate these careers which are in this category, and establish the minimum qualifications. Other professional men, besides doctors of medicine, can immediately be identified—lawyers, physicians, engineers, etc. These categories are also in short supply, but the shortage or quality of the skill does not directly touch the individual close to his heart. Unfortunately, the drain on the individual's pocketbook is not usually identified as the result of uneconomical legal or technical decisions, and will touch only his heart when a war is fought.

The Hoover Commission (Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government) report on Special Personnel Problems and on Research Activities in the Department of Defense clearly demonstrates that an over-all personnel system recognizing and rewarding professional personnel is essential if the Department of Defense is to execute its mission intelligently and economically.

The fundamental idea presented here is a uniform reward for all professional personnel employed by the Dept. of Defense. An effective over-all program would eliminate stop-gap legislation and improve the professional stature of the Department. The direct financial rewards and extensive fringe benefits available in our civilian society continue to be the largest single factor attracting the highly skilled specialist away from Service careers.

Doctors and Promotion

EDITOR, THE JOURNAL:

I have read with interest your recent articles about the shortage of doctors in the Service and also the letters to the editor about unfair promotion policies. I would like to bring to your attention a situation which I feel touches on both these problems.

At present I am in the U.S. Air Force as a doctor. I began my career in 1940 as an Infantry officer. Later I transferred to the Army Air Corps and became a pilot, serving until the end of 1945 and reaching the rank of Captain. During the next six years I went to school and became an M.D.

I returned on active duty as a doctor in 1951. However, I started over again as a 1st Lieutenant, and none of my previous active duty time counted for promotion purposes; thus five years of service went down the drain. While I realize that there are probably not many doctors in a situation similar to mine, it would seem to me that the Air Force is missing a golden opportunity in not encouraging these men to stay in the Service. I feel that the experience gained during our previous service makes doctors like me valuable to the Armed Forces, and while perhaps not all our former service should count, at least some of it should be credited for promotion purposes.

"Sykes' Regulars" and Esprit

EDITOR, THE JOURNAL:

It is a fact that all echelons of command to include the Pentagon believe in the very basic principle of building Esprit de Corps through pride and tradition in the units. A quick look at current regulations will show that it is directed that this basic principle be used to the utmost. No one in this man's Army has done more to comply with these directives than the 20th Infantry "Sykes' Regulars." We are firm believers in this principle and we know by the results obtained in Sykes' Regulars that we are positively right.

Now the proud 20th Infantry Sykes' Regulars is to be deactivated, probably to form or to keep in the rolls of the active Army a relatively new unit with little or no tradition. Does this make sense? Where is its logic? I have to agree wholeheartedly that the deactivation of Regiments with such glorious tradition is only one way to destroy Esprit de Corps, it is throwing away the most colorful pages of our proud history.

Psywar School Prepares Forces For Varied Missions; Some Are "Double Volunteers"

BY COL. EDSON D. RAFF, INF., USA
Commanding The Psychological Warfare
Center

VERITAS ET LIBERTAS — TRUTH AND LIBERTY — is the motto inscribed upon the blazonry of the Psychological Warfare School at Ft. Bragg, N. C. These words symbolize the very purposes for which the U. S. Army Psychological Warfare Center was created and to which its subordinate units are dedicated.

The Psychological Warfare School, The Psychological Warfare Board, the 1st Radio Broadcasting and Leaflet Battalion, and the 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne, have important roles to play in projecting this motto into battlefield reality.

In any future armed conflict, psychological warfare units will wage a war of words and ideas in the struggle for the minds of men. In this struggle, truth is the primary weapon—the truth about the United States and its objectives and the truth about the enemy and his objectives. Special forces units, on the other hand, working deep within the enemy homeland, will help bring liberty to enemy people and those oppressed by the enemy. In this struggle, the primary weapon will be the enemy's own manpower, which will be organized into indigenous guerrilla forces, trained and led into action against the oppressor.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE CENTER was established at Ft. Bragg in April 1952. It operates through the chain of command under the direction of Brig. Gen. W. C. Bullock, Office, Chief of Psychological Warfare, a special staff section in The Department of Army. Direct communication is permitted between the Continental Army Commander and the Center on school and board matters and liaison with OCPW for information purposes. The Center mission, encompassing both psychological warfare and special forces operations, is: first, to train individuals and units; second, to develop, test and evaluate doctrine, techniques, and procedures; third, to test and evaluate equipment; and fourth, to provide administrative and logistical support for the School, Board, and units of the Center.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE SCHOOL was officially made part of the Center in October 1952. The nucleus for the new School was the Psychological Warfare Department of the Army General School at Ft. Riley, Kans. This Department, which had been organized in 1951, was transferred to Ft. Bragg and renamed the Psychological Operations Department. Shortly thereafter, the Special Forces Department was added and, early in 1954, the Extension Courses Department, offering 14 different sub-courses, was also incorporated into the School. The Assistant Commandant, Col. William H. Kinard, jr., Artillery, is responsible to the Center Commander and Commandant for the School's operations.

In the School's resident courses selected individuals are trained for those psychological warfare and special forces duties they may be called upon to perform in time of war. A two-week orientation and a six-week regular course are offered in each field. Graduates include members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, WAC, WAVES, as well as civilian representatives of United States government agencies and selected individuals from Allied armies. The School is also charged with the formulation of new and the revision of old doctrine and techniques and the preparation of training literature for both activities.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE BOARD, with Lt. Col. Fredrick K. Hughes, Armor, as President, conducts field and laboratory tests on the latest equipment designed for psychological warfare and special forces purposes. For psychological warfare, the Board's projects include development of more effective leaflet dissemination, loudspeakers and public address systems, and improvement of printing equipment and radio facilities. Primary emphasis for special forces has been on communications equipment, demolitions, firearms, parachutes and related equipment for airborne operations. New and improved equipment for psychological warfare and special forces units is constantly being sought.

TWO ACTIVE GENERAL RESERVE COMBAT UNITS are attached to the Psychological Warfare Center for training and support. They are the 1st Radio Broadcasting and Leaflet Battalion and the 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE UNITS are relatively new additions to the Army. In World War II the U. S. Army first employed psychological warfare field units in North Africa. As the war progressed, other psychological warfare units were activated. Propaganda was coordinated with military operations and disseminated by loudspeaker appeals, mobile and fixed radio broadcasts, and leaflets. These efforts proved to be highly effective. In the post-World War II demobilization psychological warfare units were deactivated. Again, the Korean conflict pointed to the necessity for PsyWar units. Again, PsyWar proved itself.

THE 1ST RADIO BROADCASTING AND LEAFLET BATTALION, commanded by Col. Frank A. McCulloch, Inf., is the result of experience gained in the past two wars. In time of war, under direction of the Theater Commander, the Battalion will conduct strategic and tactical propaganda operations against the enemy. At the present time the unit is training highly skilled specialists in psychological warfare techniques, molding them into effective units for projecting propaganda. The wide and varying qualifications of these specialists is remarkable. In addition to linguists, some of whom speak as many as six languages, the Battalion has experts in intelligence and radio and electronics, as well as pressmen, lithographers, photographers, scriptwriters, newspapermen, layout artists, radio announcers and teletype operators. The 1st Radio Broadcasting and Leaflet Battalion is participating on both the U. S. and Aggressor sides in the SAGE BRUSH maneuver in Louisiana.

IN SPECIAL FORCES the U. S. Army has developed the toughest, most versatile soldiers in its history for a challenging task—support of the Army effort by guerrilla warfare operations behind the enemy's lines. Guerrilla warfare has been practiced since the beginnings of recorded history. Guerrillas operating on both sides in World War II and more recently in the Korean war caused diversion of large forces from the front lines to police rear areas. In June 1952, the U. S. Army activated the 10th Special Forces Group, Airborne (now in Europe), and in September 1953, the 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne, at Ft. Bragg, to organize, train and lead guerrillas in a future war.

THE 77TH SPECIAL FORCES GROUP, AIRBORNE, commanded by Col. William J. Mullen, jr., Inf., surpasses the training of the Rangers and British Commandos in versatility and ruggedness. Prepared to enter combat by land, sea, or air, Special Forces men are able to live off the land under adverse combat conditions. All are highly trained specialists, some in weapons, others in demolitions, some in communications, others in field medicine. Many are linguists. In the final phase of training all team members are cross trained in other specialties.

Operational members of the 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne, are "double" volunteers: first for airborne duty, second, for Special Forces duty. They are carefully selected and screened to insure that only best qualified officers and enlisted men wear the green beret of Special Forces and are permanently assigned to operational teams. At the present time the 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne, is participating in Exercise SAGE BRUSH, and Exercise LODE STAR in Colorado.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE AND SPECIAL FORCES cannot win wars by themselves. They can support the overall Army effort. The U. S. Army, recognizing the innate longing of oppressed people for truth and liberty, is preparing to capture the enemy's mind through Psychological Warfare. At the same time the Army is preparing to extend the strong hand of Special Forces to assist those who are physically able and have the courage to fight for their country's freedom. The Psychological Warfare Center is vigorously training officers, enlisted men, and units so that in the event of future war psychological warfare and guerrilla warfare will be fully exploited to our Nation's advantage.

GUERRILLA WARFARE

A five-day symposium on Guerrilla Warfare and the activities of Special Forces will be held at Ft. Bragg, N. C., beginning 9 Jan.

All Services will be represented. Participants will come from the United States and from overseas bases.

Assistant Army Secretary George H. Roderick and Brig. Gen. W. C. Bullock, USA, Chief of Psychological Warfare, will play prominent roles in the meeting.

Troopers Jump At 11,250 Feet; May Set Mark

Four members of the 77th Special Forces Group from Ft. Bragg, N. C., may have set an altitude record for paratroopers when they jumped from a C-124 Globemaster at 11,250 feet over Colorado.

The previous record was recorded when an Air Force team jumped last June over Colorado's South Park at 9400 feet.

The series of high altitude jumps began 25 Nov. to determine how the rate of descent is affected by rarefied air. Those who participated in the jumps were Maj. Donald C. O'Rourke, commander of the Special Forces Liaison detachment at Ft. Carson, Colo., 1st Lt. J. J. Morris, M/Sgt. Joseph Dye and Sgt. Donald E. Stetson.

AVERAGE IS 31.6

The average age of all Air Force officers, Regular and Non-Regular, at the end of the 1955 fiscal year was 31.6 years.

A tabulation of the average age of pilots and other rated and non-rated officers at the end of the same period follows:

	REG	NON-REG
Pilots on Flying Status..	35.2	30.7
Pilots Not on Flying Status .....	36.0	34.9
Other Rated on Flying Status .....	35.4	28.9
Other Rated Not on Flying Status .....	37.5	34.7
Non-Rated on Flying Status .....	29.4	24.2
Non-Rated Not on Flying Status .....	37.4	32.0

MEMO For Journal Readers

A VIP HOSPITAL SUITE, similar to that occupied by President Eisenhower at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, is being pushed by top Army medical officials for a sister facility, Letterman Army Hospital, at San Francisco, where the 1956 Republican Convention will be held.

SECDEF WILSON WAS NOT HAPPY over the disclosure, made in the Far East, by Navy Sec'y Thomas that the '57 budget would include funds for an atomic-powered surface ship. Mr. Wilson wanted to know why Mr. Thomas had to go so far to make such an announcement. PENTAGON SENSITIVITY over nuclear matters has been heightened during recent months by charges from a number of Democrats, mainly Senator Jackson (D-Wash), that the Navy has been dragging the anchor on atomic power. Presumably, the Pentagon had intended for either Mr. Wilson or possibly the President to give the first official word of plans for the A-powered surface ship.

THE FLAGRANT LACK OF UNIFORMITY throughout the Defense Department in the care of military families afflicted with polio could provoke a Congressional inquiry. Armed Services Committee sources said late this week they wanted to study the situation before deciding if an investigation is indicated. QUESTIONS CAN BE EXPECTED as to why the Services are unable to provide "unified" care for military families, particularly since establishment of such policies is a clear-cut responsibility of the Office of the Assistant Defense Secretary (Health and Medical). With The Journal's disclosure of the shocking disparities in the policies now in effect in the Army, Navy and Air Force, remedial action may be accelerated. If not, Defense medical leaders must expect rugged questioning during forthcoming Capitol Hill hearings on family medical care. CONGRESSMEN WILL ASK what impact the Pentagon's plan for joint utilization of medical facilities will have on the polio situation. Pointing to areas outside the U. S., as in Europe, where polio cases are treated uniformly, regardless of the Service connection of the wife or child, legislators are certain to wonder why the same compassionate attitude cannot be shown in the United States.

A CURIOUS RANK STATUS now exists for 15 Navy officers; it's not certain whether they are captains or rear admirals. The latest official Navy Flag List shows the names of 15 captains who are "authorized to assume the title and wear the uniform of a rear admiral while serving in a flag billet." These 15 Captains and/or Rear Admirals all have been selected previously for flag rank, to be promoted as vacancies permitted. THE NAVY WAS UNABLE this week to provide a ready answer to the question of whether or not flag officer vacancies exist for the 15 within current ceilings. IT IS RECALLED that during the 1955 Secretaries Conference at Quantico, Va., then RADM. Arleigh Burke, CNO-designate, was given the rank of Admiral for the weekend, but he received no extra pay for this "advancement," which was directed by SecDef Wilson.

AIR FORCE LEADERS, who expressed concern over relative Red airpower gains during the Summer and Fall of 1955, early next year may use Congressional hearings as a forum for suggesting the desirability of a "new look" at the 137-wing goal. It can be taken for granted that such Air Force advocates as Senator Symington (D-Mo) will draw out Air Force chiefs on the question of whether, in view of Soviet advances, they still consider the 137-wing force as adequate.

THE PENTAGON'S PLAN to provide a fiscal '57 "bank reserve" of some 50,000 servicemen, thus raising the current manpower objective from 2,850,000 to 2,900,000, may run into trouble in the Appropriation Committees. During recent years, many members of Congress have become increasingly concerned that they are surrendering Constitutional responsibilities for "raising and equipping armies" by permitting broad leeway in Executive Department implementation of defense plans approved by the Legislative Branch. MR. WILSON INDICATES that the Services will have to justify to him that there is a particular need for specific numbers of men before these added personnel would be authorized. It's true enough that this system will provide the Defense Department with greater flexibility in utilization of manpower which the Sec'y seeks. This flexibility admittedly could result in more efficient and more economical use of men. BUT THERE'S ALSO THE CERTAINTY that such a procedure will reduce further Congressional control over the size and composition of the Armed Forces. On this touchy point, the plan may falter.

THE NEW MARINE COMMANDANT, Lt. Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, USMC, who takes over on 1 Jan. will be confronted with an intriguing problem. Congress has authorized a Corps of 215,000 Leathernecks; this compares with 193,000 asked by the Administration. SECDEF WILSON SAYS that the Marines will be allowed to go above the present force of about 201,000 if they can justify the need. So it will be up to the new Marine Chief to decide whether or not to press the case for expansion. Best guess is that the Marine strength will remain about mid-way between what the Administration asked and what Congress voted.

THE COAST GUARD CAN EXPECT a busy year of Congressional liaison. A current survey (see Page 27) is aimed at possible closing of a number of the 141 life boat stations now in operation. Local citizens are certain to put heavy pressure on their Representatives to keep the units active.

THE CRUSHING SHORTAGE of decent family housing in the Air Force is pointed up in a news summary which reports need for 352,000 units for the 137-wing program. The Air Force says that 143,000 quarters are needed for officers and NCO's; for lower grade airmen, the requirement is put at 175,000. The overseas housing deficiency is placed at 34,000 units, with about 11,000 programmed or under negotiation. THERE IS HOPE that new legislation which permits use of quarters allowances for mortgage payments will result in 50,000 to 75,000 units in the United States. Question for the Air Force, as for the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, is how much Public Works money will be asked for family housing in fiscal '57. Service chiefs are not optimistic, particularly in view of the DoD order to check all spending for housing that is not absolutely essential, even if the projects have previously won Congressional approval.

ALL THREE SERVICE SECRETARIES participated in year-end inspection trips to the Pacific and Far East. Army Sec'y. Brucker and Navy Sec'y. Thomas were away this week; on 26 Dec. Air Force Sec'y. Quarles leaves for Alaska and the Far East. There is reason to believe that some additional redeployments may result from these visits. ONE POSSIBILITY is a shift of FEAF Headquarters from Tokyo to Hawaii.

$50? $500? $5,000?

It doesn't make much difference how many dollars you have to invest. You can purchase Mutual Fund shares for almost any amount—large or small. And in one lump sum or on a systematic basis. But why buy Mutual Funds?

One good reason is that by owning shares in a Mutual Fund, you own a share in as many as 100 different companies. And you share in the varying cash dividends they pay. That's putting your money to work for you—not letting it lie idle. Professional investment men select these securities carefully. And they watch them continuously for you, too.

We've helped thousands of service and civilian personnel in their financial planning. Helped them to select the Mutual Fund or Funds most in line with their personal aims. Let us help you, too.

Send a postcard and we'll mail you our new, free MUTUAL FUND BOOKLET. It has full information on how you can get started now on a planned program of owning Mutual Fund shares.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

HARK! THE HERALD ANGELS SING— Singing are Karen, 9, left, and Thielia Louise Falkenstrom, 7, daughters of Capt. and Mrs. Arthur L. Falkenstrom, USA. Captain Falkenstrom is legal officer of the School Brigade at Ft. Benning, Ga.

THE Chief of Staff of the Army and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor have with them at their quarters at Fort Myer, the General's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. M. Taylor from Oklahoma City.

Before the year is out, General and Mrs. Taylor plan to spend three days at West Point with their son, Thomas, a plebe at the Academy.

Miss Twining Is Honored—

Miss Olivia Barour Twining, daughter of the Air Force Chief of Staff and Mrs. Nathan F. Twining, has been guest of honor recently at several parties, preceding her forthcoming marriage on 26 Dec., to Lt. Haywood Shepherd Hansell, 3d, son of Maj. Gen. (Ret.) and Mrs. Haywood Shepherd Hansell jr.

On 14 Dec., Mrs. Thomas B. McDonald was hostess at a tea and recipe shower in her Alexandria, Va., home. White satin wedding bells decorated the entrance hall and a salad bowl filled with cooking utensils and recipes from each guest decorated the tea table. Mints and ice cream were in the shape of bells.

The Ft. Myer quarters of Gen. and Mrs. Thomas D. White was the scene of a luncheon and miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. White and Mrs. Frank F. Everest on 9 Dec., and Mrs. William Eckert and Mrs. D. L. Putt were co-hostesses at a luncheon and kitchen shower at the Bolling AFB Officers' Club. On 17 Dec., Miss Sarah Picher entertained at a luncheon in her home in honor of Miss Twining and her attendants.

Marine OWC's Christmas Luncheon—

Tinkling notes of English hand bells playing folk tunes and familiar Christmas music highlighted the luncheon meeting of the Marine Officers' Wives Club, on 14 Dec., at the Army-Navy Country Club. Mrs. Chester R. Allen, program director, introduced seven members of the Falls Church, Va., English Hand Bell Ringers, whose program included many old favorites and well-loved Christmas carols.

The unannounced appearance of Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., honorary president of the Club, and wife of the Commandant of the Corps, as guest of honor, made the occasion especially gala, since Mrs. Shepherd has been unable to attend Club meetings in recent months. Mrs. Francis M. McAlister, Club president, presented Mrs. Shepherd, who, in turn, expressed her pride in the Club and its growth, and extended season's greetings to all the members.

Mrs. McAlister also introduced the luncheon hostesses, Mrs. Robert A. Black, Mrs. Ormand R. Simpson, Mrs. Houston Stiff and Mrs. J. F. Lawrence, Jr., and announced that Mrs. George A. Roll would succeed Mrs. J. C. Munn as membership chairman, when General and Mrs. Munn leave for a new assignment at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

A "get-acquainted" game with prizes, during the sherry hour preceding the luncheon, proved popular, credit for which goes to Mrs. Jack W. Temple, the Club's welcoming chairman.

An effective arrangement of frosted fruit in an antique silver tureen centered the head table, with smaller designs and tall red tapers in silver candelabra on either side. Completing the Christmas motif, the front of the head table was festooned with loops of holly and Christmas greens, while red candles and greens formed centerpieces for the smaller tables.

It was announced that the next luncheon, on 18 Jan., will feature a "white elephant" sale.

QM OWC Has Dinner Dance—

The Quartermaster Women's Club held its annual Christmas dinner dance at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club, on 16 Dec.

The main ballroom, where members and guests gathered for cocktails, dinner, and dancing to the music of Dick Bailey's orchestra, was decorated in a gay Christmas theme, with holly-berried red cloths on the tables and arrangements of tall white tapers and greenery interspersed with pine cones. Highlighting the decor, a large lighted Christmas tree stood on a platform at the end of the room.

Hosts for the evening were Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. Beverly Boyle, jr., assisted by Lt. Col. and Mrs. James E. Brady, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert O. Graham, Maj. and Mrs. Jefferson T. Holman, Maj. and Mrs. William H. Buth, and Maj. and Mrs. John A. Kjellstrom.

Among the more than 250 who attended were The Quartermaster General Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Kester L. Hastings, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert P. Hollis, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Andrew T. McNamara, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Alfred B. Denniston, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Henry R. McKenzie, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Wm. E. Barksdale. Also present were a former Quartermaster General, Maj. Gen. (USA-Ret) and Mrs. Herman Feldman, and Brig. Gen. (USA-Ret) and Mrs. Albert C. Dalton. During the evening, General Dalton was introduced by General Hastings and honored as the oldest retired general officer in the Quartermaster Corps.

Navy Supply Corps Christmas Dinner Dance—

For the Navy Supply Corps the Yuletide season began on 9 Dec., at the Army-Navy Country Club, when its annual Christmas dance, "Le Bal de Noel," took place.

Over 350 guests were greeted by the Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, RAdm. and Mrs. Ralph J. Arnold, the Chief of Naval Materiel; VAdm. and Mrs. Murrey L. Royer, the Deputy Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts; RAdm. and Mrs. Joel D. Parks, Capt. and Mrs. Delmar R. Capell, and Capt. and Mrs. Laurence A. White.

Gold and white angels were used as table centerpieces and the ballroom glittered with swags and garlands of Christmas greens, an 18-foot tree and several smaller ones bedecked with bright bows and gay bells. The Navy Band's Continentals provided the dance music.

Enjoying the evening's festivities were some out-of-towners—RAdm. and Mrs. J. W. Crumpacker of Philadelphia, Capt. and Mrs. N. C. Brady of Brooklyn, Capt. and Mrs. J. F. Tenney of Annapolis, and Cdr. and Mrs. Larry Lovig of New York, house guests of Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Humes.

Others seen there were RAdm. and Mrs. T. L. Becknell, RAdm. and Mrs. Lloyd Thomas with their guests, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. W. P. Farnsworth, VAdm. and Mrs. C. R. Brown, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. W. K. Ghromley; Capt. and Mrs. Ben Tieslau, and Capt. and Mrs. DeWitt MacKenzie.

The success of the party can be credited to the efficient planning of the following committees under the supervision of Mrs. L. A. White, general chairman: ballroom decorations, Mesdames C. K. Phillips; table decorations, E. D. Vestal, jr.; invitations, H. B. Arthur; hostesses, J. F. Castree; refreshments, T. C. Fowler; reservations, W. B. Durant, jr., and C. A. Messenheimer; door prizes, J. C. Hetler; program, C. J. Braun; dismantling, A. D. Cox, jr., and name tags, Wave Cdr. D. M. Quinn.

Christmas in Sweden—

The Signal Corps Officers Wives learned many interesting things about Christmas in Sweden at their recent luncheon at the Army Navy Country Club.

Margareta Soderblom, Assistant Cultural Attache of the Swedish Embassy, presented a fascinating program about her country's holiday season. She used recordings of Swedish Christmas songs to illustrate her talk.

The honor guests were Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor, wife of the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. Carter B. Magruder, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. The receiving line included Mrs. James D. O'Connell, wife of the Chief Signal Officer, Mrs. W. Preston Corderman, wife of the Deputy Chief Signal Officer, Mrs. John R. White, president of the club, and the two honor guests.

In keeping with the theme of the program, Mrs. W. W. Lindsay and her committee had decorated the club with sprays of holly and a Christmas tree covered with Swedish cookies. At the head table Swedish Angel Chimes were used. Forming a backdrop for the table was a large poster with the greeting "Glad Jul" (Merry Christmas in Swedish).

There will not be a meeting of the club in January. The next will be a luncheon on 7 Feb.

MRS. LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, JR., honorary president of the Marine Officers' Wives' Club and wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, was surprise guest of honor at the Club's Christmas luncheon on 14 Dec. It was the first time Mrs. Shepherd had been able to attend a Club meeting since her illness last Spring. Mrs. Shepherd is shown with Mrs. Randolph McCall Pate, left, whose husband, Lt. Gen. Pate, will succeed General Shepherd next month as Commandant, and Mrs. Francis M. McAlister, right, Club president.

New Year's Reception at Bryn Mawr—

TC Women's Club Cheer Hospital Patients—

Making Christmas a little brighter for patients at the Ft. Belvoir, Va., Hospital was the pleasant task of ladies of the Transportation Corps Women's Club on 20 Dec.

As their Red Cross project, the members, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Paul F. Yount, wife of the Chief of Transportation, serve home-made cookies and coffee to patients at the hospital once each month. Since the date coincided with the day the ladies of Ft. Belvoir were to make wreaths and decorations for the Post, refreshments were served to them also.

Mrs. Francis S. Donnell is chairman of the project, assisted by Mrs. Ray J. Cox and Mrs. Wallace R. Elliott, Jr. Club members serving as hostesses for the day were Mesdames Charles C. Peterson, William L. Calhoun, Burton E. Miles, Don F. Strausbaugh, Clarence E. Jeffress and Fred E. Featherstone.

Belvoir Wives Honor Mrs. Taylor—

The general atmosphere of an old fashioned Christmas greeted 200 members and guests of the Officers' Wives Club, at Mackenzie Hall, Ft. Belvoir, for a Christmas program and tea, on the afternoon of 13 Dec., honoring Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor wife of the Army's Chief of Staff.

Hung on large green wreaths in the lobby were name tabs in the form of gay Santas and glittering snow flakes. The circular stairway was entwined with garlands of holly, laurel and red berries, and a 9-foot Christmas tree glimmered in a fireside corner of the Fairfax Room. Three long tea tables, laden with Christmas cakes and cookies, were bedecked with pine cones, holly and red tapers in silver candelabra, with everywhere the pungent fragrance of pine, cedar and Japanese holly, fresh from the Ft. Belvoir forests.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Louis W. Prentiss, wife of the Commanding General, were Mesdames Taylor, Samuel D. Sturgis, jr., Thomas Lane and Walter H. Parsons, jr., the Club's president.

Upstairs, the oak-paneled walls of the Castle Room were hung with more greens and crimson berries, while before the great fireplace, the nationally-acclaimed Chorus of the U. S. Army Band, under the direction of Capt. Samuel Loboda, presented with beauty and reverence "The Christmas Story" in narration and song.

Following the musical program, the members and their guests had tea in the Fairfax Room. Mrs. Horace F. Sykes and Mrs. Eskill Alenius were in charge of arrangements assisted by Mesdames Joseph Baccl, John P. Beeson, Peter Somers, Frank E. Deeds, P. J. Nation, Alfred F. Berra, Robert W. Britten (decorations), Arthur C. Fillbrandt, Ernest Graves, Joe Sherman, James M. Mueller and Maurice Kurtz (reservations).

Christmas sparkle and good cheer prevailed on the evening of 17 Dec., when some 300 officers of the Transportation Corps and their ladies gathered in the ballroom of the Ft. McNair Officers' Club for their annual Christmas dinner dance.

Traditional Christmas colors were used in the gaily decorated room, highlighted by a backdrop of princess pine, centered with a large red candle.

Lasher, Mrs. Evan M. Housman, president of the T. C. Women's Club which sponsored the event, and Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Tripp, who were in charge of the party.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

THE Fokker S-14 two-place intermediate jet trainer (shown above) was scheduled to arrive in the United States 23 Dec. for a demonstration tour of Air Force and Navy air training bases throughout the country.

Fairchild Aircraft, which holds the rights to manufacture and sell the Dutch trainer here, announced that the S-14 arrives in Baltimore aboard the S. S. Black Eagle of the Black Diamond Line. The plane will be taken to the Glenn L. Martin plant at Middle River for assembly under the supervision of Gerry van der Meulen and Peter Wey, Fokker factory service engineers.

According to present plans, the 450-miles-per-hour jet trainer will go to Fairchild's Hagerstown plant about Jan. 3 for a short series of test flights. E. R. (Dutch) Gelvin, assistant chief flight test pilot, then will fly to the Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Station for demonstrations on 15 Jan. and to Craig Air Force Base, Ala., on 22 Jan.

Late in January, Fairchild plans to fly the S-14 to the Washington-Baltimore area where demonstrations will be made before representatives of U. S. Air Force Headquarters, the Air Research and Development Command, and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Later, if sufficient interest is expressed by military agencies, the plane may be sent to the Air Training Command facilities at James Connally AFB, Tex., and to the headquarters of the Air Training Command at Scott AFB, Ill.

Military Buying Faces New Shake-Up

the three Services, the report states that the Army directive "is slanted in favor of negotiation under emergency provisions instead of in favor of competitive advertised procurement." The Navy "speaks to its employees of competitive advertised bidding as something 'not prohibited' . . . It is little wonder that with this attitude expressed in its directives, over 94 per cent of the dollar value of all contracts let by the Navy Department were not advertised for competitive bidding."

Air Force instructions were "the most shocking. This Department has engaged in an almost cynical flaunting of the declared purpose of the Armed Services Procurement Act as stated in its own directive." Although the AF directive states that negotiation shall be considered "as the unusual method of purchasing," its records "show that 99.56 per cent of the dollar value of all its contracts have been let on negotiation."

New Defense Department procurement regulations which go into effect on 1 Jan. 1956, change the form "but not" the substance of present practices, the Subcommittee said. The authority to use negotiation "has merely been nominally taken away from the three Service Department Secretaries and assumed by an Assistant Secretary of Defense, but their authority to use an exception is still continued in practical effect." This "lip service," the report states, "is little assurance to the public that the exception is not the rule."

The Subcommittee suggested "a possible revision of the Armed Services Procurement Act, particularly with reference to the authorization for non-competitive bidding during periods of a national emergency declared by the President."

The report concludes: "Following the present mode of procedure and as proposed after January 1956, neither the Congress nor the public can learn with any certainty or speed whether it is getting the best price from the best possible potential of American industry. The whole operation is shrouded in bureaucratic secrecy. There is no time and place at which the American businessman or anyone concerned may see posted prices within their own industry excepting in the rare cases where it has pleased the Department to allow open participation in procurement.

"It seems from the practices prevailing in the 30-month period examined, the Department of Defense has taken advantage of the American manufacturer who might and could produce competitively on a far greater scale than they have been allowed to do.

"If the public is to have some assurance that defense costs are to be critically examined, the Government had better return to competitive advertising on a large scale and allow American producers and labor, in free and open competition, to determine the true cost of National Defense competitively as a matter of National policy, instead of transferring that responsibility to the secret files of a negotiator."

Chairman Vinson said "healthy competition" will help "reduce our costs." He said this was the intention of Congress when it wrote the Procurement Act.

AMSC Offers Special Training For Women

Professional training as commissioned officers in the Army Medical Specialist Corps will be offered again this year to 64 selected woman college graduates.

The Army Medical Specialist Corps includes dietitians, physical and occupational therapists in Army hospitals, and conducts programs in each of these specialties. Women under 27 years of age who have or expect to receive a degree in one of these fields by next June are eligible to apply.

Applications should be forwarded through the school director to the Office of The Surgeon General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., no later than 15 March. Selections are made 15 April and all applicants will be notified immediately of their status. Following graduation they are commissioned second lieutenants but do not report for active duty with pay and allowances until August.

Prior to their professional training, the new officers will attend a one-month Medical Service Officer Orientation Course at Army Medical Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. The schedule calls for 20 to be dietetic interns, 20 physical therapist students, and 24 occupational therapy students.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

RADM. Henry C. Perkins, USCG, Chief, Office of Operations, is conducting an on-the-site survey of all Coast Guard Life Boat Stations to determine whether they should remain in operation.

The question in the minds of Admiral Perkins and his staff is whether there is still a need for these facilities in light of recent scientific advances.

It may be possible, it is felt, to deactivate many of the stations because of the great strides made in aviation. Fast moving planes, helicopters and power boats, based at fewer locations, may be able to assume the duties performed by some of 141 Life Boat Stations.

The average Life Boat Station is manned by 12-15 men who operate a boat from 36-40 feet. Most of the service rendered by these stations is close-in life saving missions—primarily giving protection to "weekend" operators of pleasure craft.

So far, Admiral Perkins has toured stations in three states—Cross Island, Machinasport, Jonesport, and Fletcher's Neck, Me.; Nauset and Grey Head, Mass.; and Monmouth and Tom's River, Carson Inlet, N. J.

Final decision on these locations have not yet been made. In fact, a decision will not be made on any location until the Admiral and his staff have made the entire circuit. Weight will be given to the opinions of townspeople who appear at public meetings and express views regarding the value of the service at specific locations.

After the Christmas holidays, Admiral Perkins will resume his tour. On 9 Jan., he will inspect Little Island LBS, Virginia Beach, Va. An open meeting for the purposes of discussion will be held at Community House.

On 11 Jan., the party will inspect Nags Head LBS, with a public meeting slated to be held at Manteo Courthouse; on the same day, a visit will be made to the Depot at Elizabeth City, N. C.

On 12 Jan., the Admiral and his staff will tour Atlantic LBS, Atlantic, N. C.; the public meeting will be conducted at Carteret County Courthouse, Beaufort, N. C.

The next day, an inspection will be made of Upper Cape Fear River Light Attendant and Oak Island LBS, N. C.

Accompanying Admiral Perkins are: Capt. George D. Synon, USCG, from Program Analysis; Cdr. Verne C. Gibson, USCG, representing Civil Engineering; and Lt. John H. Bruce, USCG, of Shore Units. In addition to these Headquarters officers, each facility provides a member of the inspecting party—usually the District Chief of Staff or the Chief Operations Officer.

The entire survey of Life Boat Stations is expected to continue for about a year. It has not yet been decided whether Admiral Perkins will inspect installations in Alaska and in Hawaii.

(2) Concurrent travel policies should be restudied with a view to easing the financial burden of Air Force people.

(3) Bases in USAFE and FFAF should be studied from an operational standpoint, including length of Air Force tenure, and appropriate adjustments that are required in family housing and leasing priorities.

(4) Approval was given to the recommendation that continued emphasis be placed on transportation functions, but that no special organization be set up to replace the present Director of Transportation.
